

Larry's Lines...

The Light We Leave Behind

Wise men know that it is impossible to live an isolated life. Tennyson said, "I am a part of all that I have met." Paul said, "No man lives to himself and none dies to himself."

It should be apparent that there is a connection and mutual dependence existing among all of us. We were brought into this world by others. We did not grow up without others; nor learn to walk and talk without the help of others. And what we learn, we learn from others, many of whom have been in their graves for a long time.

One can never be a self-contained individual. You were influenced by those around you; and for better or worse, you will influence others. In a little cemetery stands a white stone marking the grave of a dear little girl. On that stone are chiseled these words, "It was easier to be good when she was with us." Who can estimate the power of such a life?

You, dear brother, have the wonderful power of influence. Use it wisely, that others might walk aright in the light you leave behind.

*"Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father In heaven."
Matthew 5:16*

Larry
