

Larry’s Lines...

Do Good or Do Wrong

Augustine of Hippo (354-430AD) in a sermon to the rich said: “That bread which you keep, belongs to the hungry; that coat which you preserve in your wardrobe, to the naked; those shoes which are rotting in your possession, to the shoeless; that gold which you have hidden in the ground, to the needy. Wherefore, as often as you were able to help others, and refused, so often you do them wrong.”

In the first century those Christians who were able to help the needy did so. Luke tells us, “There was not a needy person among them, for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the proceeds of what was sold and laid it at the apostles’ feet; and distribution was made to each as any had need” (Acts 4:34).

Concern for those in need is one of the hallmarks of Christianity. James reminds us, “What does it profit, my brethren, if a man says he has faith but has no works? Can his faith save him? If a brother or sister is ill-clad and lack of daily food, and one of you says to them, ‘Go in peace, be warmed and filled,’ without giving them the things needed for the body, what does it profit?” (James 2:14-16). While James is trying to stress the relationship between faith and works, nevertheless he makes an important point about benevolence. It’s one thing to express our sympathy to victims of a hurricane and another thing to reach out and do something constructive about their condition. What do fair words amount to without good works? You know the answer to that.

“So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all men, and especially to those who are of the household of faith” (Galatians 6:10).

Sharing should come naturally to the Christian. In the words of Dietrich Bonhoeffer, “Earthly goods are given to be used, not to be collected...Hoarding is idolatry.”

Have a Great Week
Larry
